Following a visit to Omaha Beach, we drive to Mont St. Michel, the celebrated Benedictine abbey on a rocky, cone-shaped island in northwestern France, connected by a causeway with the mainland. Founded in 708, the abbey resisted the assaults of the English during the Hundred Years' War. Its small houses and shops from the 13th century are considered outstanding examples of Gothic architecture. We also see the cathedral's south spire, its statuary and its Late Gothic choir screens. In the afternoon we arrive in Nevers to visit the Convent of St. Gildard, where Bernadette Soubirous of Lourdes spent the final 13 years of her life.
